INFO

The online seminar series will address ethical aspects of research in the Global South and various other challenges connected to primary data collection. Seminars are scheduled from October to December 2021 and will bring together researchers and practitioners from all over the world.

Seminars will be held via google meet platform. Each seminar will take approximately 60 - 90 minutes, starting with a presentation from the speaker and afterwards a room for Q&A and discussion.

The seminar series is primarily aimed at PhD and Master's students of global development/migration studies, but anyone interested is welcomed to join. We hope to bring attention to these topics, learn and debate!

REGISTRATION

Register in the following form and you will receive a google meet link in advance of each seminar (or any information regarding changes in the series schedule).
